I BELIEVE
BY: JE'KOB

Verse 1
Back when I was young, I was just a loner sitting on my rooftop staring at the stars /
Wondering if someone up in the sky was staring back at me /
And that's when I took to the streets with my guitar strings /
Searching for the architect of all these things Ohh /
And curiosity sparked my soul /
Then common sense kicked in, as I looked around at the numbers and the measures and the units /
All the fine tuning needed for life to exist /
In this great big abyss /
And it made me say /

Chorus 2 X
Ohh, ohh, ohh I believe
Ohh, ohh, ohh I believe in you

Verse 2
Everything I saw, it began to make sense, all the little things that make us who we are /
Now I know that someone's up in the sky staring back at me /
Now I'm gonna take to the streets with my guitar strings /
singing bout the one who created all things Ohh /
And now I know that He holds my soul /
And now I pray you see, as you look around at the numbers and the measures and the units /
All the fine tuning needed for your life to exist /
In this great big abyss oh /
And oh, I hope it makes you say /

Chorus 2 X
Ohh, ohh, ohh I believe
Ohh, ohh, ohh I believe in you

Verse 3
Brilliant scientists winning big awards for discovering what's already there /
Then they label these theories with great big words so that everyone's confused on how we all got here /
But that's just one side, many scientists believe in God & they credit that the proof is in the Jello /

Many have been quoted saying physics brings them closer to God, and and in turn takes them further from the devil /
Like the bass & treble, or the notes on a page, everything works within laws that pre-exist /
Even the instruments that the scientists invent and use, wouldn't be able to work without this /
Think about it /
And that's enough to make you say /

Chorus 4 X
Ohh, ohh, ohh I believe
Ohh, ohh, ohh I believe in you
